

Errata and Updates to Funding Your Education: The Guide to Federal Student Aid

The office of Federal Student Aid, U.S. Department of Education, is making the following correction to the 2012-13 edition of Funding Your Education: The Guide to Federal Student Aid (December 2011).

If you answered “No” to all of these questions, you’re a dependent student. Go to www.fafsa.gov for more information.

The correction is reflected in the PDF version of the publication posted at www.studentaid.ed.gov/pubs, www.studentaid.ed.gov/guide, www.FSAPubs.gov, and www.EDPubs.gov. An image of the corrected page is enclosed for your reference.

There also have been recent changes in law that impact federal student aid programs and affect the content of Funding Your Education: The Guide to Federal Student Aid. The updated information appears below.

Eligibility of Students Without a High School Diploma

To be eligible for federal student aid, students enrolling in higher education for the first time on or after July 1, 2012, must have either a high school diploma or a recognized equivalent (such as a General Educational Development certificate [GED]) or have been homeschooled. Students will no longer have the option of becoming eligible for federal student aid by passing an approved test or completing at least six credit hours or 225 clock hours of postsecondary education.

Elimination of Grace Period Interest Subsidy

This provision eliminates the interest subsidy provided during the six-month grace period for Direct Subsidized Loans for which the first disbursement is made on or after July 1, 2012, and before July 1, 2014. Students receiving a subsidized loan during this timeframe will be responsible for the interest that accrues on the loan during the grace period. If a student does not pay the interest accrued, the interest will be added (capitalized) to the principal amount of their loan when the grace period ends.

How and when should I get a PIN?

You will be offered the option of getting one in real time when you fill out the online FAFSA. You can also apply for a PIN in advance at www.pin.ed.gov.

I can't remember my PIN.

You can request a duplicate PIN at www.pin.ed.gov. After you receive your duplicate PIN, you should return to the PIN site and use the "Change My PIN" function to choose a PIN you will be able to remember.

Safeguard your PIN!

- Your PIN is used to sign legally binding documents electronically and access your student aid records. It has the same legal status as a written signature.
- Don't give your PIN to anyone—not even to someone helping you fill out the FAFSA. Sharing your PIN could put you at risk of identity theft.
- Change your PIN to one you can easily remember if you think you might forget the one issued or think someone might know your PIN.
