When was the last time you gave 100%?

When was the last time you gave 100%? If it takes you a while to think about it, the chances are either you always give 100% or you rarely do and say that you do. This is the most important challenge we may face in life sometime. However, it's a challenge many elect to be sub-par in not considering that if we do our very best, it can be a positive life changing experience. Whether it is at our job, with our children, in a relationship, working out, reaching our life goals or getting an education, in order for us to realistically expect dreams to come true, we must give 100%. And for God's sake, never let your past stop you from being what you want to be in the future. We cannot expect things to change in our life if we do not put in the proper effort to make it happen. That effort should begin by working on one's self to improve our self worth, then believing that you are worthy of succeeding. A part of giving 100% is pride, self respect, respect for others, having faith that we can do whatever we set our heart out to do, believing you deserve it, then going all out to make it happen. Don't cheat yourself, life is short. Only you really know if you've given your all. Whatever you plan to do, when you plan to do it, give 100% to get the best results. If by any chance things don't work out the way you planned them, at least you can say without regrets, "I gave 100%" and know truly that you did.

This year's SFBJ annual Top 100 private companies list was published on the July 19, 2013 issue.

Each year, the South Florida Business Journal publishes a list of businesses headquartered in South Florida whose total revenue has increased significantly from the year prior. "We are honored to have been chosen as one of the SFBJ Top 100 Private Companies in South Florida," says Florida National University's President, Mrs. Maria Cristina Regueiro.
